

Lupus Research: What you can do and what the medical community is doing
Lupus Fact Sheet

This article outlines the current studies related to lupus. These studies focus on genetics and the environment, early prevention, thrombophilic factors and ethnicity, providing the latest details on the subject. The article concludes by encouraging people to enroll and participate in studies, to further improve the current research.