

Did Somebody Say O-O-H-M?

By: Emily Wojcik

A lupus patient discovers the mind-body connection. Utilizing meditation and yoga, she decreases stress, increases endorphins and increases her white blood cell count. Although she still uses medication for lupus flares, she has been able to decrease her medication needs, by decreasing her overall stress level, and increasing her overall health and well being.